In this work, we investigate the release of silver nanoparticles (AgNPs) from polyacrylonitrile (PAN) fibers and their biocompatibility in cancer cells. Transmission electron microscopy (TEM) images show that these AgNPs have uniform and spherical morphology with a size around 8-10nm. The AgNPs were immobilized on PAN fibers using a chemical bonding and the released AgNPs were measured quantitatively through inductively coupled plasma mass spectrometry (ICP-MS) to obtain a correlation between the cumulative and the instantaneous release of AgNPs. The cumulative Ag release is a linear function of the square root of time suggesting the release follows a square root law. There was no release of AgNPs from the polymer fibers in HEPES buffer, indicating that the immobilized AgNPs can be stably stored in the medium for at least one week. The AgNPs released from the polymer fibers are in the form of nanoparticles and can readily enter into the cell cytosol by endocytosis through the ascor 0cc13bf012

I am using mongoose on nodejs (to connect and query my mongodb database) and promises. I've checked out other posts, but can't find a way how to use the async/await construct in order to execute the promise in the end. My issue is, that mongoose returns a promise, but I have to wait until the db query is finished, so I can call.sort() on a query I perform at the end of the async. Here is my Promise-Function: this.findAddressByPk = function (pk) { const addressBook = this.addressBook; return new Promise(function (resolve, reject) { //query mongoose addressBook.findById(pk, function (err, data) { if(err) { return reject(err); } if(!data){
