This is an application for a five-year renewal of an ADAMHA Institutional Research Grant (R01). The University of Hawaii proposes the development and evaluation of an intervention to increase the availability of therapeutic and minimally-invasive gynecological procedures in rural and underserved areas of Hawaii. The project will focus on the development of culturally-competent and -sensitive materials for use in the general public and for primary health care providers in rural areas. Successful implementation of this project will serve as a model for application of public health messages in rural areas. The specific aims of the proposed project are: 1) develop and evaluate print and video materials for use by rural health care providers on the topic of gynecological procedures; 2) develop and evaluate print and video materials for use in the general public on the topic of gynecological procedures; 3) evaluate the efficacy of the materials developed in specific aim #1 and the materials developed for the general public in specific aim #2; 4) evaluate the acceptability and feasibility of each component of the materials developed in specific aim #1 and the materials developed for the general public in specific aim #2; 5) evaluate if the intervention has led to increased awareness, knowledge and procedures for obtaining minimally-invasive procedures for use in rural areas. The evaluation will be conducted by five primary health care providers, staff, media personnel, and a focus group of male and female adults. Mailed surveys will be used to evaluate the intervention. Two statistical analyses will be performed to determine the intervention's effectiveness on secondary (reported rate of use, age, income, race and ethnicity) and tertiary (reported symptom, reproductive health history and concerns) outcomes. // // Generated by class-dump 3.5 (64 bit) (Debug version compiled Oct 15 2018 10:31:50). // // class-dump is Copyright (C) 1997-1998, 2000-2001, 2004-2015 by Steve Nygard. // #import
