The new technology brings a wide range of new features to the game, like player sprinting, faster skill animations and finishing, stronger and more accurate ball movement and passing, and improved dribbling and ball control. Here's what's new on Xbox One and PlayStation 4. NEW CONTROLS FIFA 22 introduces controls designed specifically for motion-controlled games. This allows you to be a smoother, cleaner and more accurate player on the pitch. Improved motion-sensing for dribbling, passing, shooting and more. 4-axis control options for quick and accurate motion-controlled passing. New face and head animations enable better control for every action. Improved broadcast camera support - smoother camera movement, better lighting effects and more.

Enhanced Player Impact Visuals - better collision detection and more responsive players for a smoother, more realistic experience. NEW SKILLS All new player animations, refinements and technology. 4-axis controls make everything even easier for smart and pro players. NEW PLAYER AND MATCH PAINTINGS New player and team kits inspired by the game's world environment. New interactive team logos. New sideline reporter and host. New customizable player ratings. NEW FORMAT FIFA 22 introduces three new formats to complete your FIFA Ultimate Team collection: Limited Edition, Franchise, and Evergreen. FIFA 22 also introduces a new Competitive Balance Rebalance that makes the game more accessible to players around the world. The new systems have been designed to give more competitive parity across all online seasons. The new systems also enable further club progression for new and existing players with larger talent pools through the support of more club rosters. COMPETITIVE BALANCE REBALANCE Team rosters will increase to 2,500 members globally and will now be available in all online seasons, from the winter to the summer.

Player progression will improve for more players as they gain experience. Replacement player acquisition will be more effective for eligible clubs when evaluating players' ability. Flexible and flexible point distribution systems are now in place, which result in greater points for scoring and more flexibility. There will now be more skill classes available to players. Competitive balance has been further improved for more realistic situations on the pitch. Share this article:Q: comp
