"A Special "Saturday Night Live" Song" appears on Iggy Pop's album "The Idiot" (1987). The lyrics to the song include references to movies, writers, comedians, and classical music composers. "A Special "Saturday Night Live" Song" was the last song that Iggy wrote for David Bowie before they split up. (David Bowie also wrote the song "The Man Who Sold the World" about Iggy, from a song idea he presented to Iggy on a postcard from Japan. Their collaboration "China Girl" was also released on a postcard from Japan.) Vintage Photos of Iggy Pop & David Bowie Taken on the "Saturn Club Tour" of 1970 In the song, Iggy Pop recalls seeing a photo of rock & roll singer Eddie Cochran in a newspaper when he was just a teenager and he also spoke to his parents about a possible girlfriend: "I am supposed to meet a girl named Phoebe this weekend / Well, if I don't

We found that most adult Horseshoe bats, captured using mist-nets, showed blood loss due to their injuries, mostly sustained by their wings. We have found that Horseshoe bats consume sand (a mineral found in much of South Asia, particularly in Sri Lanka) during flight. Sand appears to provide a substance, other than water, which is acceptable to most mammals, enabling them to resist blood loss. We have also found that injured bats have a significantly decreased ingestion of water and protein, but ingestion of carbohydrates is not significantly different between injured and control bats. These findings are discussed in relation to the blood loss and the role of sand in natural survival of bats in a hilly area of Sri Lanka.Q: Selecting fields
