It works by recording keystrokes, mouse clicks, webcams, application activity, and much more! Once recorded, you can see information of your keystrokes, mouse clicks, screenshots, activity and more by clicking on it. You can even get a full copy of the data sent to your email. When an employee's respirator is deemed damaged or worn out, it should be tagged and placed in an approved respirator storage container. The container shall be retrievable for inspection by the employee's supervisors, in accordance with paragraph (d) of this section. Whenever an employee is required to work in close proximity to a hazardous substance, the employer must ensure that the employee wears appropriate personal protective equipment, such as, respirators. The employer must also ensure that the employee follows instructions and post-shift site review training in the use of personal protective equipment. While not required in this part, employers are encouraged to allow employees to wear respirators in addition to other protective gear. Employers with facilities with hazardous substances, but with only low levels of airborne concentrations that do not present an imminent danger to workers, could choose to permit employees to wear respirators where respirators are not required by standard or regulation. If an employee indicates in advance that he or she would like to wear respirators, the employer must verify whether the respirator equipment is available. If respirators are available, the employer must allow the employee to wear such respirators. If an employee does not indicate in advance that he or she would like to wear respirators, the employer must have available, and the employee must be furnished, protective equipment other than respirators, if the employee requests protective equipment other than respirators.
